Terro Fruit Fly Trap

The apple maggot fly (it resembles a house fly and can be identified by the dark banding on the wings) is a major pest for both home and commercial orchards. Apple maggots infest pears, apples, apricots, hawthorns and plums. The adult female flies pierce the fruit skin, depositing eggs inside the fruit. Newly hatched larvae tunnel through the fruit, causing brown streaks in the flesh. Trapping the female flies during the egg-laying cycle reduces the damage to fruit. The Tangle-Trap Red Sphere Trap lures flies away from the fruit as they search for egg-laying sites. Thinking the red traps are ripe fruit, the flies land and attempt to deposit eggs. Once they've landed, the flies are permanently trapped in the sticky Tangle-Trap Insect Trap Coating which is specially formulated to remain sticky over wide temperature ranges and wet weather conditions. The coating is clear, odorless and completely pesticide-free. Hang approximately one trap per every 100 apples or other fruit. A semi-dwarf tree usually requires just two traps. For best results, traps should be in place after trees have blossomed, before petals fall.

Turf MVP (Calcined Clay)

Similar to Oil-Dri, Turface MVP can be incorporated into your infield mix. It fights infield compaction that leads to running, sliding and bad ball hop injuries. MVP holds moisture, nutrients and increases drainage as a result of balanced air and water pore space. MVP can also be used as a topdressing to quickly turn muddy conditions into dry, safe surfaces. MVP absorbs its weight in water, allowing play to resume quickly after the rain stops.
